

Co-Creating With Passion

Have you ever had a great idea that truly would have made a difference in the world? One of those precious jewels received from the Universe in a moment of inspiration, or a vision received in a deep meditation. Remember the joy, the exhilaration, the state of delight you felt! You were at the peak of an intimate connection with all of life. You were vibrantly in touch with your creative energy. You felt real, blessed, empowered, and adequate. Then ego went to work putting a "rational frame" around your vision, around this Divine Idea. Through this rationale, your vision got blurred, the power of your idea was slowly erased by the fears and limitations of the collective Human Consciousness. You forgot your stroke of Genius. You forgot your identity and who's idea it was in the first place. The passion necessary to breathe life into your vision, the love and commitment required to make it a reality were not there anymore. Then one day you found out that someone else had the same idea and their idea became reality!

Your ego was supplying you many good reasons and explanations...but your spirit knew better. Divine ideas come and go and freely flow in the superconscious mind. We are the receptors, it is our responsibility to capture them, to nurture them and to be the co-creators.

Dreams and visions, ideas and goals are but simple daydreaming without the passionate focus of our feeling nature, without the burning desire and the consistency of love that turns them into reality. Divine ideas impregnate our creative energy, but it is our passion that nurtures them. It is our compassion, the all-inclusiveness of all existence; our love of humanity that turns [our inspirations] into remarkable works and achievements, whereas our rational thinking has killed many [great ideas]. At the speed we are traveling on the information highway, it is not additional knowledge but [rather] the quality of our love that will [enable us to make manifest our highest goals and dreams].

Are we listening? Are we connecting our bodies, our minds, and our emotions? Are we fine-tuning our receptors? [Are we rigorously scrutinizing our ego reactions and responses?] Are we putting our passion, our enthusiasm, our joy into the Divine Ideas and making them reality? Is our feeling nature turned on or tuned off? Can we say this affirmation and truly mean it and feel it?

Every atom of my being is alive, alert and awake.

The genius in me is present and receptive.

My response-ability is focused: I am a co-creator.

Through me the Universe thinks, feels, expresses, and manifests.

I know it, I feel it; and I do make a difference.

And I give thanks.

I salute your creative genius and admire your passion for life. I believe in you and I believe in me.
